Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—President Eisenhower will send to the Senate shortly the nominations of Charles E. Bohlen to be Ambassador to the Soviet Union and Francis White to be Ambassador to Mexico, the White House announced today. Both nominees have had extensive diplomatic careers. Their selection for the posts had been forecast.

Mr. Bohlen, now Counselor of the State Department, will succeed George F. Kennan, who was declared persona non grata by the Kremlin last October for allegedly offensive observations to a Berlin news conference about conditions in Moscow.

James Hagerty, White House Press Secretary, said he did not know what assignment would be given Mr. Kennan. There have been reports he will become Ambassador to Yugoslavia.

Attended Conferenees

Mr. Bohlen, a Russian-language expert, acted as interpreter for President Roosevelt at the conferences with Premier Stalin at Teheran and Yalta, and for President Truman when he met the Soviet leader at Potsdam in 1945.

Mr. White entered the diplomatic service in 1915, after studies at the University of Grenoble, the Ecole des Hautes Politiques in Paris, the University of Madrid and the Royal Academy in Madrid. He rose to be Assistant Secretary of State in 1927, and left the service in 1934 to become executive vice president and then president of the Foreign Bondholders Protective Council. He makes his home in Baltimore.

His predecessor in the post at Mexico City was William O'Dwyer, former Mayor of New York, who submitted his resignation last December.

The Senate confirmed a number of President Eisenhower's appointments today, including those of Allen W. Dulles as Director of the Central Intelligence Agency and Lloyd A. Mashburn as Under Secretary of Labor.

The Senate also approved the personnel of the United States delegation to the meeting of the United Nations General Assembly that opens in New York tomorrow.

Delegation Members

The members of the delegation are Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., James Wadsworth, Ernest A. Gross, Senator Alexander Wiley, Republican of Wisconsin and chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and Senator Theodore Francis Green, Democrat of Rhode Island. William Sanders of Virginia was confirmed as an alternate delegate.
